LITTLE GOOD HARBOUR

SAINT LUCY, BARBADOS

Small-scale beachfront hideaway on Barbados' west coast, offering a quiet, residential-style stay in a restored coral-stone fort setting. Accommodation is in individually designed one- to three-bedroom suites, each with a full kitchen, separate living space, and private terrace or balcony, making it particularly well suited to longer stays and families seeking independence. The atmosphere is calm and low-density, with two small pools and a relaxed beach access across a quiet coastal road. Dining is centred around the well-regarded Fish Pot restaurant, known for its oceanfront setting and locally driven menu, which also attracts outside guests. Service is informal, personal, and highly familiar in tone. Best for couples or families seeking a low-key Barbados stay with strong character, good space, and a more private, villa-style alternative to larger west coast resorts.
